In 1972, William “Billy” Walsh had only one thing on his mind when his family moved to Dallas, Texas—playing baseball. He learned to play the game in the Tri-Boro League, and in 1972, weeks before he moved, his team, the Yankees, won the championship. Eight published books and four colleges degrees later, Walsh is returning to Fairview to discuss Lakewood, his debut novel, why it took 39 years to complete, and how you can also publish your story. This award-winning author’s publications include Speak So I Shall Know Thee: Interviews with Southern Writers; The Ordinary Life of a Sculptor; The Conscience of My Other Being; Under the Rock Umbrella: Contemporary American Poets from 1951-1977; David Bottoms: Critical Essays and Interviews; and Lost in the White Ruins; and, Fly Fishing in Times Square. He lives in Atlanta with his wife and three children. Feel free to bring your copy of his book to be autographed.
