Virtual Community Conversations are an interactive that will bring Erie County Public Library (ECPL) and community members together to think, discuss and explore creative ways to improve the community's collective quality of life. Community conversations are an authentic way to engage members of the community. These discussions are meant to generate public knowledge that can inform decision making for the library's strategic planning. Ultimately, these discussions will help create long-term, far reaching goals; that will impact the communities we serve.

At the end of the series of conversations, we hope to:

- Learn the aspirations that community members have for their community and determine what the library can do to help reach those aspirations.
- Provide information about the resources that ECPL currently offers and how we intend to enhance those resources.
- Develop meaningful partnerships that enhance library's diversity.
- Cultivate stronger active relationships with community organizations and members.

Following the virtual conversations, the community can expect Erie County Public Library to initiate actionable steps in response to the expressed ideas, desires and ultimately the needs of the community. Through virtual community conversations ECPL will redefine its community engagement and outreach to the communities we serve in Erie County.
